FoodHub unveiled a redesign Tuesday along with plans to take their matchmaking site for the foodie set to the national market.

With more than 2,000 users and fawning attention from the likes of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and Fast Company magazine, FoodHub has made quite a splash during its first year of existence.

But what does the FoodHub experience mean for the farmers and food producers on the ground? Portland Business Journal Photographer Cathy Cheney paid visits to several FoodHub members and brought back a story in pictures.
